Broussard denies slate of 6 charges
Ex-Jefferson leader: 'It's a beautiful day'

Paul Rioux West Bank bureau

Former Jefferson Parish President Aaron Broussard and former Parish Attorney Tom Wilkinson pleaded not guilty Tuesday to six new charges in the sweeping federal investigation of Broussard's administration.

The theft, fraud and conspiracy charges outlined in a Feb. 3 superseding indictment accuse Broussard of giving Wilkinson a $36,000 raise in 2009 after a relative of Broussard's was admitted to a private school where Wilkinson served on the board.

The indictment doesn't identify the school or Broussard's relative. But Wilkinson used to be chairman of Christian Brothers School in New Orleans.

While waiting for their joint arraignment to begin, Broussard and Wilkinson sat in separate areas of the courtroom and did not converse with each other.

Broussard maintained his upbeat public demeanor as he entered the Hale Boggs Federal Building in New Orleans.

"It's a beautiful day," Broussard said Tuesday as he walked past reporters and TV news cameras. "I feel nothing but the breeze in my face and the wonderment of this day."

Wilkinson and Broussard declined to comment after their brief court appearance.

"You know we can't talk about the case," Broussard's attorney, Robert Jenkins, said. "But the thing about it is that he didn't do anything improper."

The new charges are in addition to 32 counts of conspiracy and theft that Broussard and Wilkinson face from a Dec. 2 indictment alleging a payroll fraud scheme that benefitted Broussard's ex-wife, Karen Parker.

Parker was paid as a paralegal supervisor from October 2003 to February 2010 even though she wasn't qualified for the job and was actually assigned to another department to process employee identification cards, a job that should have paid her about $22,000 less.

Parker has pleaded guilty to covering up a felony and is cooperating with prosecutors.

Broussard's former top aide, Tim Whitmer, who also is cooperating with investigators, allegedly told Wilkinson the $36,000 raise was a reward for helping Broussard's relative, according to the superseding indictment.

Whitmer had received similar outsized raises from Broussard at a time when the parish was cutting expenses to deal with a budget crunch.

The raises prompted the Parish Council to pass an ordinance limiting discretionary raises for parish executives to 5 percent and requiring council approval.

Whitmer, who initially pleaded innocent, is expected to plead guilty to failing to report a felony when he is re-arraigned March 22.

The trial for Broussard and Wilkinson has been set for May 14.

If convicted of all charges, they each face 695 years in prison and more than $9.5 million in fines, although maximum sentences are rarely meted out for first-time federal offenders.
